

Jennifer Lee

Jenn holds a BA in English and Theatre from Le Moyne College and has a diverse background in arts and education. She has spent the past two years teaching through-out the Capital Region with Drama Kids International. She has worked as the Education Apprentice at Capital Repertory Theatre, where she taught in art camps and school residencies, directed for the S.T.A.R. program, and developed shows for the "On The Go" school tour series. She went on to develop a literacy and creative dramatics class at the Hamilton Hill Arts Center in Schenectady. Jenn also has an extensive professional theatre background, having worked as a stage manager, actor, and director with Upstate Independents, Capital Repertory Theatre, Le Moyne College, The Redhouse, and The Gifford Family Theatre. She was also the assistant to the artistic director at Capital Rep and originated a role in the world première of the adaptation of Fever 1793, the award winning children's book by Laurie Halse Anderson.
