Named after the area that borders the Mohawk and Hudson Rivers in New York State, MoHu is a nine-day celebration of arts and culture in the Capital Region. This year kicks off the first MoHu festival, which is to be held annually in Albany, Schenectady, Rensselaer and Saratoga counties.

Nearly 150 regional arts and cultural organizations will feature theatre, dance, music, visual and performance art throughout the region. MoHu is helping to bring more audiences to our area and celebrates the strength of the arts in these communities.

Proctors and Capital Repertory Theatre are proud to be a part of MoHu Fest and are offering some great live performances!
